THE SOCIETY FOR APPLIED BACTERIOLOGY

The Society as at present constituted forms the third stage in a process of evolution. Originally there was a discussion group at the National Institute for Research in Dairying, formed of workers engaged in research on different aspects of dairy bacteriology. This expanded to include workers in other fields related to agriculture, and became the Society of Agricultural Bacteriologists. Later, in 1945, the scope was further widened to embrace all aspects of industrial bacteriology and the present name was adopted.

The object of the Society is to advance the study of microbiology in its application to agriculture and other industries. In the past the Society was concerned primarily with the activities of bacteria but, gradually, the interests of members have broadened to include other groups of microorganisms. However, to replace the word 'Bacteriology' with the logically superior term 'Microbiology' would not enlarge the scope of the Society's activities but would promote confusion with other well-established societies and journals. Meetings at which members discuss their scientific work are held at different centres in the United Kingdom. Any person who is engaged in the study of problems in the field of microbiology is eligible for election as an ordinary member.

The annual subscription, which entitles a member to receive The Journal of Applied Bacteriology, is £10.00 and is payable on the 1st October each year. Further information about conditions of membership may be obtained from the Secretary.

All the Officers of the Society function in an honorary capacity.

Notes on the Use of the Index

The index is presented in three sections.

SECTION 1 contains the titles of papers and their references. The titles are arranged in alphabetical order of the first named author and each paper is given a serial number.

SECTION 2 is an author index. By the name of each author are listed the serial numbers of all the papers in which he or she is concerned whether as first named or co-author.

SECTION 3 is a subject index. Topics are cross-referenced and the serial numbers of papers concerned with the various topics are listed by appropriate headings.

The reader wishing to locate a particular paper or papers on a selected topic will first locate the author in SECTION 2 or the topic in SECTION 3. This will provide the serial number(s) of the relevant paper(s) and the details may then be obtained from SECTION 1.
